Dear Eyal,

A people person.

Thinks outside the box.

Precise.

Eyal doesn't push or persuade. He listens.

We live in the north and were looking for an apartment to rent long term in the Ramat Aviv area and the neighborhoods nearby.

When we first contacted Eyal and defined our needs, he actually pointed us to a completely different property, believing that precisely that kind of property might suit us better. He was right. It left us with a hard dilemma, and in the end we decided not to go ahead with that property. Eyal listened and understood our decision.

Eyal called us two weeks later, after we had seen many properties with other brokers. "I just walked out of a meeting about a new property. It is exactly what you are looking for, with the right owners, even though it is outside the range of neighborhoods you defined." Eyal had already built our trust in the earlier conversations. We came, and in the end we signed.

The property and the owners are both right for the long term. Did we mention that Eyal is a people person?

To whom it may concern: it goes without saying that we have joined the circle of those who recommend him. We warmly recommend him.

Thank you, Eyal
